

THE STRUGGLE IS REAL:

Searching for content at work is taking over your time

Constant searching for documents during the workday is wasting time and reducing employee productivity

Drowning in a sea of documents

Remote employees say that managing email is nothing compared to digging up the files they need:

Time wasted

60% say they spend more time digging for documents than replying to email.

85% spent time searching for documents during the day.

When "it" hits the fan — you need fast access to critical docs

Many office professionals have difficulty finding the right documents when they need them most:

Sweating the Details

81% of office pros have had a hard time finding an important doc when a boss or client has them in the hot seat.

Frequent Freak-outs

31% of office workers say they frequently struggle to find documents they need during a tense moment at work.

Not So Savvy?

41% of millennials are way more likely to struggle to find content than their Gen X peers.

Finding content fast is a problem for everyone, from the home office to the corner office

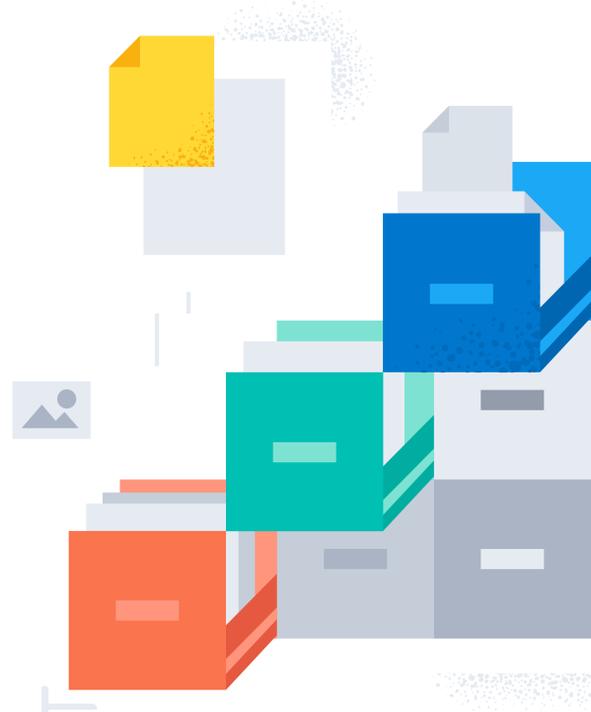

Companies need to figure out content management (and fast) if they want to keep employees productive and win in the work-from-home world.

Exasperated Execs

LEADERS ARE 3x more likely to say quick file search is a top problem than the teams they lead.

Get It Together

NEARLY 58% say a quick search for files and documents is a top 3 problem to solve for working from home.
